

We encourage you to store your squawker between uses in a cool, dry place with good air circulation.

Prevent unintended dog access when your squawker is not supposed to be in use.

Successful training will require a balance between allowing some damage to the squawker to build a dog's keenness and use of muzzles to preserve the integrity of the squawker.

Despite our best efforts to ensure product quality, it is difficult to predict how any particular piece of natural fur will perform in the field. If you experience breakage of your tail, save larger pieces for reattachment or supplement with additional fur pieces, as needed.

Fur pieces are easily attached to the outside of the squawker over the top of the existing tape. We recommend the use of a good quality electrical tape such as 3M Scotch Professional Grade Super 33+ which is easily applied and easily removed. Duct tape will work, but will leave lasting adhesive residue.

Used squawkers can be rebuilt. Contact us for more info at dominodogs@charter.net
